

I Can't Let Another Day Go By

I can't let another day go by
I can't let another season simply fly I can't let another moment pass me by without bothering to try, finding reasons or asking why should I,
let another day go by

One day the fallout follows you home, the day you fall down and strain the life that lingers to get up and move around, can't fall back down

I can't let another day go by
I can't let another season simply fly
I can't let another moment pass me by
without bothering to try,
finding reasons or asking why
should I,
let another day go by

One day the river washes away the ground you've prayed on and all the trappings you have displayed have floated on,
but you must stay
One day the light that guides your spirit leads you into shades of gray where color is a desert rain, happiness, a drink away

One day the fallout follows you home,
the day you fall down
survival orders you to awake, move around,
and not fall back down

I can't let another day go by
I can't let another season simply fly
I can't let another moment pass me by
without bothering to try,
finding reasons or asking why
should I,
let another day go by let another season simply fly let another moment pass me by
without bothering to try,
finding reasons or asking why
should I,
let another day go by